Methodists Make New Assignments

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) —

The Little Rock Conference of the Methodist Church reported a decline in total membership Wednesday but leaders were not concerned that the flock is straying.

The Rev. Gerald Fincher of Lewisville, conference stationer, said that conference churches had been clearing their rolls of inactive members and that if this had not been done the rolls would show an increase of about 900.

Instead membership was reported at 85,289, a decrease of 178 from last year.

"We lost numbers not members," said Bishop Kenneth Pope, of Little Rock, administrative head of the church in Arkansas.

The Huttig and Marysville churches in the Camden District were named winners of the Methodist Town and Country Commission's annual award for achievement.

Announcement of pastoral appointments concluded the conference's 11th annual meeting. Two new district superintendents — Marshall Bridwell in the Camden District and J. Ralph Clayton in the Little Rock District — were appointed by Pope.

Superintendents in the Hope, Pine Bluff, Arkadelphia and Monticello districts were reappointed.

Wayne Hampton of Stuttgart, chairman of the Arkansas commission, said Tennessee and Memphis would reap most of the benefits from the bridge and should pay more.

The meeting of the two groups was announced Wednesday at an Arkansas Highway Commission meeting.

The commission revised its 1963-64 budget to provide additional funds for highway betterment in six counties. The new budget includes $1.25 million for such projects, purchase of machinery and vehicles.

The commission approved these projects, by county:

Arkansas: Resurfacing 12.9 miles of Arkansas 11 northward from Lodge's Corner, at an estimated cost of $116,500.

Monroe-Pave 2.3 miles of Arkansas 86 northward from Holly Grove, $50,000.

Miller-Gravel base on 5.9 miles of Arkansas 134 from U.S. 71 to Gin Valley Road, $77,000.

Sharp-Stone base along six miles of Arkansas 58 from Arkansas 115 to Poughkeepsie, $51,000.

Nevada-Pave 4.7 miles of Arkansas 32 from the Hempstead County line to Bodcaw, $78,500.

Perry-Pave 7.7 miles of Arkansas 216 northeastward from Arkansas 9, $60,000.

The commission directed erection of signs prohibiting pedestrians, bicycle-riders and other non-motorized traffic from using controlled access state highways.

The commission approved surveys and plans for construction of a $165,000 bridge over Cypress Bayou on Arkansas 44 between Arkansas 1 and Tichnor.

Millions Pay Last Tribute to Mr. Nehru

By CONRAD FINK

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's body was committed to the flames of a funeral pyre today in an ancient Hindu ceremony watched by hundreds of thousands of mourners on the banks of the sacred Jumna River.

Ending an era, Nehru's 17-year-old grandson Sanjaya Gandhi touched a torch to the huge pile of sandalwood on which the prime minister's body lay.

Police had to beat back crowds with clubs when the gun carriage bearing Nehru's body approached the cremation site after a funeral procession through the city. Thousands of shuffling feet sent up a dust cloud that obscured even the towering walls of the nearby Red Fort.

Military officers lifted Nehru's body to their shoulders, walked along a freshly laid carpet of red earth spread to the pyre and then up seven steps to the sandalwood resting place.

Frenzied mourners shouted "Nehru! Nehru!"

Even before the procession started from the prime minister's official residence, a stampede among the crowd outside killed two persons and injured six.

The gun carriage was halted repeatedly by the vast throng of mourners. Foreign statesmen and dignitaries riding in cars behind were prevented from following closely.

Uncounted hundreds of thousands followed the procession.

Bodcaw Road Contract Approved

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Tennessee Highway Director said today that he felt sure Arkansas and Tennessee could reach agreement on how much each is to pay for construction of a Mississippi River bridge linking the states.

David Pack, the director, said the bridge "would be a great asset to Memphis and Tennessee."

"We're very anxious to see the bridge built," he said in a telephone interview.

The highway commission of Arkansas and Tennessee are to meet in Memphis June 9 to iron out financing of the proposed bridge.

The federal government will pay 90 per cent of the $50 million cost, and Arkansas wants Tennessee to pay $3 million of the remaining $5 million.

Wayne Hampton of Stuttgart, chairman of the Arkansas commission, said Tennessee and Memphis would reap most of the benefits from the bridge and should pay more.

Negotiations Between Russia and U.S. Running Up String of Impressive Successes

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Negotiations between the Soviet Union and the United States are beginning to run up an impressive list of successes. The latest is the new treaty to increase protection for American citizens in the Soviet Union and Soviet citizens in the United States.

Still, relations between Washington and Moscow in some ways are getting worse. At the same time they are getting better. The future course or relations is unpredictable, and no one in either capital has any guarantees against the sudden eruption of a new and dangerous crisis.

Agreement on the new treaty, formally known as a consular convention, was announced by President Johnson Wednesday. He emphasized that it was the first two-nation treaty between this country and the Soviet Union in the 31 years they have had diplomatic links. He expressed the hope that it would lead to a further improvement in relations.

The treaty provides for opening up consular offices in each country, in addition to the embassies in Washington and Moscow. How many offices will be opened and where they will be established are questions still to be negotiated.

The United States is reported interested in having a consulate in Leningrad, and the Soviet Union is understood to want a consulate in Chicago. Each country formerly had consulates in the other, but they were closed in 1948 as a result of cold war incidents.

The most important provision of the pact, in the U.S. view, is a commitment by each government to give official notice within three days of the arrest of a citizen of the other, and to permit officials to visit the person arrested within four days.

ands jammed the city shouting, cursing and throwing flower petals at the body wrapped in India's tricolored flag and lying atop the gun carriage.

The crowd was so thick and the procession so chaotic that U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, who arrived from Washington after the funeral march started, could not join the procession. He spent two hours at Palam Airport while aides tried to arrange a helicopter airlift to the cremation site.

Acting Prime Minister G. L. Nanda with tears in his eyes placed a floral wreath on the body as it was lifted from the porch of the prime minister's residence to a flower-bedecked gun carriage.

The body had lain in state on the porch through the night as hundreds of thousands of sorrowing Indians passed in mournful homage. So great was the desire to see India's 74-year-old leader a last time that the crowd outside stampeded shortly before the procession started killing two persons and injuring six.

To the beat of muffled drums an honor guard of Indian soldiers and sailors accompanied Nehru's bier as six horses slowly drew it along the six-mile route to the Hindu funeral pyre at the Rajghat, the Pyre of Kings, on the banks of the holy Jumna River.

Sorrowing Indians jammed the line of march.

Turbaned Kisan farmers who drove their bullock carts from nearby villages watched as a long line of shiny automobiles carried government chiefs, diplomats and soldiers around the world in the procession.

The huge crowds broke through the police lines many times halting the vehicles behind the gun carriage.

Trees along the route were filled with spectators. Many tumbled to the ground when overloaded branches gave way.

Scores of women and children fainted under the scorching sun. Some were trampled.

"Nehru! Nehru!" thousands screamed, drowning out the funeral drums.

Although Nehru was an agnostic, the ritual of Hinduism—the majority religion of India—was to be followed strictly.

Nehru's grandson, Sanjaya Gandhi, 17, was to light the pyre near the spot where Mohandas K. Gandhi, Nehru's leader in years of campaigning for independence from Britain, was cremated after a Hindu fanatic assassinated him in January 1948.

Premiers and foreign ministers, diplomats and military chiefs headed for New Delhi within hours after they received the word that Nehru had died Wednesday of a heart attack.

British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home and Admiral of the Fleet Earl Mountbatten, representing Queen Elizabeth II, were among the first to arrive at New Delhi.

Other early arrivals were Soviet First Deputy Premier Alexei Kosygin and Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike, prime minister of Ceylon.

U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk, representing President Johnson, was scheduled to arrive several hours after the start of the funeral procession.

As expressions of regret poured in from around the world, Nehru's body lay in state on the front porch of the prime minister's residence.

Weeping mourners flocked to the residence, and by dawn police estimated that 400,000 had passed the bier.

"DEAR ABBY"

YOU WERE WRONG!

By Abigail Van Buren

Dear Abby: Yesterday I received a telephone call from a girl asking me to her prom. I had not even seen this girl in four years, and to tell you the truth, it is not long enough. I never liked her because she was loud and forward, and besides, she used to stare at me in eighth grade, which gave my friends plenty to kid me about. I told her I couldn't take her to the prom because I had to work that night, which was true. After I hung up my mother asked me who the girl was. I told her in a nice way that it was none of her business, which it wasn't. Do you see anything wrong with that?

GROUNDED

Dear Grounded: Yes, there is no "nice" way to tell one's mother that something is none of her business. Even if it isn't.

Dear Abby: I myself would not inform a teacher when others are cheating. Yes, teachers who care about what goes on in her classroom can catch cheaters with little effort. Cheating in school is dishonest, of course, but it is not to be compared with robbery, assault or murder. When one witnesses harm or violence done to another, he has a moral obligation to report the offender immediately. When one cheats in an examination, he is only cheating himself and damaging his own character and reputation. If he attempts to cash in on his ill-gotten marks, he will only prove to others that his fine record was not earned because he will not know his subject. Don't back down Abby; I think you were right.

"FORTY-ONE YEARS ON THE BENCH"

Dear Abby: I do not believe that very young children should "tattle" on one another for the slightest little thing. But when a student sees another student cheating during an examination I think it is his duty to inform the teacher. Today the classrooms are so crowded, especially in the colleges and universities, we are told that students may get away with cheating unnoticed. How would YOU like to lie down on an operating table and entrust your life to a surgeon who had cheated his way through medical school?

Johnson Calls

ler for the first of several days of talks on Laos, Cambodia and Viet Nam.

The British Foreign Office, in a sharp rebuke of the Russians, dismissed the Soviet note on the U.S. flights as "purely propagandistic" and said it "totally misrepresents the true position in Laos."

The Soviet note said the United States was "embarking on this dangerous road of an open violation of the Geneva agreements" and "assumes grave responsibility for all consequences following from this."

The Russians also accused the United States of trying to involve the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization in "its dangerous plans for Laos."

The Soviet Union urged Britain to endorse the note for distribution to the United States and other participants in the 14-nation Geneva conference of 1962 which guaranteed Laotian neutrality. Russia and Britain are co-chairmen.

"They can never have expected us to agree" to distribute the note, the Foreign Office said.

British officials consider the flights justified because the Communist Pathet Lao forces refused to allow inspection of their military strongpoints by the International Control Commission established by the Geneva agreement.

Laotian Premier Prince Souvanna Phouma asked the United States to undertake the flights.

In a dispatch from Washington, the Soviet news agency Tass accused the United States of "harboring plans for new military actions in Southeast Asia, which hold nothing in store but scandalous failures."

From Laos came a report that right-wing troops were on the move in the Mekong River area about 90 miles northeast of Vientiane and had regained some territory from the Pathet Lao near the town of Muong Huong.

seizure.

Soviet failure to notify the United States promptly of the arrest of American citizens has been a major source of irritation, one dramatic incident being the seizure last year of Prof. Frederick C. Barghoorn. That case was finally straightened out only after the personal intervention of the late President John F. Kennedy.

Typical of the double-sided nature of U.S.-Soviet affairs at present is the fact that, at almost the same hour that Johnson was announcing the consular pact, a spokesman at the State Department was deploring the prospective shipment of Soviet arms to Cyprus.

An arms deal between the Cyprus government, controlled by the island's Greek majority, and the Soviet Union has been rumored for about two weeks. U.S. officials obviously believe the reports are true, and they fear the possibility of new violence between the Greek population and the Turkish minority.

The most serious source of current tension between the world's two major powers, however, is the crisis in Southeast Asia. Faced with Communist offensives in both Laos and South Viet Nam, the United States has been employing all kinds of diplomatic pressures to persuade Red China and Communist North Viet Nam to stop the fighting in Laos, and to realize the dangers of an expanded war in Viet Nam.

Privately, officials said the United States had really got no help from the Soviets in its efforts to bring the crisis under control. On the contrary, they noted a sharpening turn in Soviet propaganda, coupled with warnings against a greater U.S. intervention in the area.

Other sources of tension include continuing Soviet support for Cuba as a Communist beachhead in the Western Hemisphere. In fact, given the possibility of some Cuban action against U.S. reconnaissance planes, many authorities here still see the situation in the Caribbean as a potential powderkeg.

The parallel trend of improved relations dates from the Cuban missile crisis in the fall of 1962. As the great powers backed away from the confrontation that had carried the world seemingly to the edge of nuclear war, there were many statements from both Soviet and American leaders that steps must be taken urgently to strengthen the prospects for peace.

The first of the agreements that resulted was an agreement to open up a "hot line" between Washington and Moscow, so that in any future crisis the men with the power of decision could communicate with speed and security.

The next major development was the successful negotiation in signing of a treaty imposing a limited ban on the testing of nuclear weapons.

One of the more concrete achievements of the series of negotiations which have gone on since the Cuban missile crisis, was last fall's U.S.-Soviet wheat deal. Under this agreement, the United States has sold the Soviet Union 1.7 million tons of badly needed wheat.

Authorities here also cite as an evidence of declining East-West tension the parallel actions taken last month by President Johnson and Premier Khrushchev in announcing a cutback in the production of nuclear explosives.

Most officials here think the trend toward improving relations has been both helped and hindered by the Soviet split with Red China and the resulting rivalry between Moscow and Peking for leadership of the Communist parties around the world.

Undoubtedly, the split has caused Khrushchev to reassess his relations with the West, in the light of the fact that the Soviet Union is caught up in a cold war on two fronts. It is assumed here that the long Soviet border with Red China is a source of constant concern to rategists.

At the same time, U.S. experts say, because of the competition for Communist leadership, Khrushchev must strike out against the United States and other Western powers on some issues since failure to do so would yield advantage to the Chinese.

Schola Scores First Win

The University of Arkansas' Schola Cantorum was the first American choir to win the International Polyphonic Competition at Arezzo, Italy. The choir won the title in 1962.

Highs today from the upper 70s to the mid 70s, lows tonight in the 50s.

LOUISIANA: Partly cloudy through Friday with scattered thundershowers north and isolated afternoon and evening thundershowers south portion. Not much change in temperature. Low 66 to 72 tonight. High Friday 88 to 95.

Gives Money for Spa Gambling

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Garland Anthony of Bearden, a businessman who has extensive interests in Hot Springs, donated $20,000 Wednesday to a fund to carry the fight to legalize gambling in Garland County.

Anthony, 80, gave a check to Mort Cox, executive Vice president of the Hot Springs Chamber of Commerce which is trying to raise $125,000 to push for passage of a constitutional amendment legalizing gambling.

Petitions to put the amendment on the November ballot are now being circulated.

John Antonio, an advertising agency executive who is directing the petition campaign, said Wednesday that petitions full of signatures are beginning to come in.

It will take 30,800 signatures to get the proposal on the ballot.

At the same time, the council said the death toll of 13,350 for the first four months this year was 14 per cent higher than the previous record set in the same four months last year.

Organized in 1914

Alpha Zeta, an honorary agriculture fraternity, was organized at the University of Arkansas' Fayetteville campus in 1914.

Over the past two weeks, air and ground units of the U.S. Strike Command, formed in 1961 to give this nation a striking force ready for limited war anywhere in the world have been split into two forces play-acting like two nations in mortal struggle.

Under the Colonial banner were the 1st Armored Division of Fort Hood Tex., the 101st Airborne Division of Fort Campbell Ky., and the 2nd Brigade of the 40th Armored Division of the California National Guard.

Under Nezona's banner were the mechanized 5th Infantry Division of Fort Carson Colo., the 25th Brigade of the Arizona National Guard the 2nd Armored Division and the 191st Infantry Brigade of Army Reserves from Arizona New Mexico and Nevada.

At the moment the battlefield stretches along the Colorado in a virtual stalemate with each nation about where it was when the war began.

It all began because Calonia — on the California side of the Colorado — and its mythical neighbor, Nezona, on the Arizona side, were feuding over rights to the river's precious water.

On the night of May 15, Calonia stopped arguing and sent troops by helicopter to occupy Parker and Davis dams, in a demilitarized zone supervised by a mythical international body, the Organization of Western States.

The following day Nezona declared war and invaded Calonia.

Living Cost Reportedly Inching Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—Living costs inched up one-tenth of one per cent in April, the Labor Department reported today.
But the Bureau of Labor Statistics said price increases so far this year were lower than in the previous two years and indicated "a very stable price situation."
The April rise took the consumer price index to 107.8, meaning it took $10.78 to purchase items that cost $10 in the 1957-59 period, base years for the index.
Recreation, rent, and medical costs were largely responsible for the April increase. Food prices remained steady on the average.
Medical costs were up three-tenths of one per cent from March.
Although food prices were generally unchanged, they were still 1.3 per cent higher than in April a year ago.

Marked Tree is said to have taken its name from a mark on a tree showing that the river was fordable at that point.

table was centered with a silver epergne holding white stock, yellow carnations, and burning white candles.

Presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. W. Marvin Henry of Shreveport, aunt of the bride. The three-tiered wedding cake was served by Mrs. Ladd Miller of Texarkana. Mrs. Raymond Griffin of Texarkana presided at the guest book. Completing the house party were Miss Valis Boudrie and Miss Tao Klein of Texarkana and Mrs. Jerry Garrett. Rice bags were distributed by little Miss Dana Goodlett of Texarkana. Mr. Floyd Fowler of Texarkana presented the music.

For her wedding trip to the Mississippi Gulf Coast and New Orleans, the bride chose an avocado green pure silk suit with bone accessories. She pinned the orchid from her bridal bouquet at her shoulder.

Faubus Says No Fuss Over Proposals

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Gov. Orval E. Faubus indicated Wednesday that he has no intention of being drawn into a political squabble over any of the constitutional proposals being advanced for the November ballot.

Faubus told a news conference that he has about made up his mind not to sign any of the petitions being circulated to get various measures submitted to voters.

The governor said he was likely to adopt this policy so he would not be forced to refuse to sign any of the proposals. He would not say which, if any, he favors.

Petitions are being circulated for amendments to legalize gambling in Hot Springs, set up a permanent voter registration system and abolish the poll tax, increase maximum salaries of county officials and to give persons 65 and over a permanent hunting and fishing license for $1.

Winthrop Rockefeller, the Republican candidate for governor, had endorsed the permanent registration proposal and indicated he wants to make a campaign issue of it.

Faubus has not said how he stands on registration but he approved an annual system set up at a special legislative session.

The annual system later was invalidated by the Arkansas Supreme Court which held the legislature does not have authority to authorize voting in state, county and local elections by persons who have not paid a poll tax.

Wedding Vows Are Repeated

Mrs. Lawrence Walter Martin, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence (Larry) Walter Martin, Jr. are at home in Houston after a wedding trip to New Orleans. The bride was the former Katherine Amburn Candiff of Houston. Her parents are Mrs. Betty Granbury Amburn and Ellen V. Amburn, both of Houston. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Martin of Marshall, Texas, formerly of Hope.

Vows were exchanged in West-Houston, on May 16, in the presence of the families. The Rev.

Clyde Davis, pastor, officiated at the double-ring ceremony. Victorian arrangements of pink gladiolus, chrysanthemums, and stocks decorated the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an avocado green silk linen suit with matching hat and bone accessories. Her corsage was of Phalaenopsis orchids.

Attendants were Miss Diane Dunwoody and Frank J. Beyt, both of Houston.

Following the ceremony, the bride's family entertained with a luncheon in the private dining room at Rudi's Club. The table, overlaid with a white linen cloth, was centered with an arrangement of white roses, daisies, orchids and Fujl mums interspersed with polished white cadmium leaves. A three-tiered wedding cake was served.

Mrs. Martin is a graduate of Kindaid High School, Houston, and has attended the University of Oklahoma and Rice University. Her social sorority is Zeta Tau Alpha.

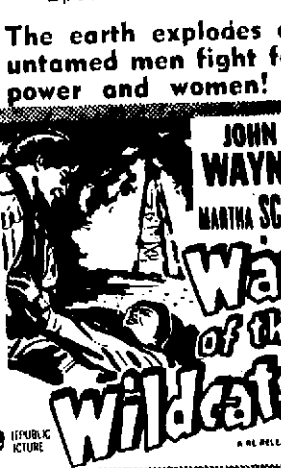

Mr. Martin was an honor graduate of Marshall High School and had attended schools in Hope before moving to Marshall. He received his degree in business administration from Lamar State College of Technology, Beaumont. His social fraternity is Pi Kappa Alpha, in which he served as rush chairman and as vice-president. He is employed by Westinghouse Corporation in Houston.

Giles Calls for Umpires to Cool Off a Bit

CINCINNATI (AP) — Warren Giles, National League president, called for a "cool-headed, dedicated men on the staff to prevent any action which would be harmful to the league or the game" while he "communicates" with the attorney for the men-in-blue.

The umpires' attorney, John J. Reynolds, said Wednesday that the umpires were sticking to their July 3 ultimatum unless their pension demands were met, despite Giles' first official statement on the subject. In his statement, Giles said:

"Our office and our league is sympathetic to their request for a fair and reasonable increase in their present retirement benefits."

"Their recent action was premature. Their cause will not be helped by issuing ultimatums or setting deadlines. I am confident there are enough cool-headed, dedicated men on the staff to prevent any action which would be harmful to the league or the game."

Giles said that in February he had proposed an increase in the umpires' retirement benefits to make these "comparable with those of the players."

"I am advised," Giles went on, "the umpires at their May 25 meeting rejected the plan I had outlined and asked for greater benefits. I have advised their representative that I will submit their request at the same time I present my recommendation."

Giles said he would do this at the regular midsummer league meeting that will be held after the All-Star Game, July 7.

At present, umpires get $200 a year for each year of service when they retire at 55. The umpires' association wants this raised to $300 a year for each year of service. The umpires contribute five per cent of their salaries to the pension fund.

Reynolds, appraised of Giles' statement, said it did not effect the July 3 ultimatum. The ultimatum was issued Monday after 18 of the league's 20 umpires met in Chicago and announced that "appropriate action" might be taken if their demands were not satisfied.

Speedway Drivers Get Final Checks

By DALE BURGESS Associated Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Drivers in Saturday's $500,000 Memorial Day auto race got their last chance today to check whether mechanics put everything back in the right place after post-qualification tear-downs.

The 33 glittering cars, stripped down to the bare frames in a scrutiny for damaged parts, were to be checked out in a final practice with full fuel loads from 2 to 4 p.m. EST. It seemed unlikely that the highly specialized mechanics had misassembled the expensive machines—but it has happened. The late Jimmy Bryan, winner of the 500 in 1958, was left at the starting line the next year when he couldn't let out his clutch. Two bolts had been interchanged.

Today also was the last chance for world road racing champion Jimmy Clark to get in a little practice since winning the Grand Prix of the Netherlands last Sunday. He qualified his new Lotus-Ford hurriedly on the first day of the 500 time trials May 16—so hurriedly he set a 10-mile record of 158.828 m.p.h. for the Indianapolis Motor Speedway—then dashed off to Holland to practice on the North Sea dunes course.

The 500 Festival, an aspiring youngster which hopes to rival the Mardi Gras and the Tournament of Roses, will reach a colorful climax this evening in a parade featuring 33 elaborate floats—one for each starting car—and scores of bands and marching units.

Times have changed in the decades since the drivers used to wheel into the Speedway on race-day morning in pickup trucks, with no preliminaries, and set about fueling up for the 500. Indianapolis has had four solid weeks of parties, and recognition affairs for past and present luminaries of the auto racing world.

The fantastic night - before brawl on 18th Street, main artery to the Speedway, is to be more subdued this Friday night—or so police hope. Instead of the thousands of fans partying all night in cars parked for miles along the street, a special overnight parking lot has been set up on the Speedway's sprawling property. Authorities also hope a special night court for peace-breakers will calm down the early arrivals.

California Campaign Pace Lively

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater, bolstered by neutrality pledges from Richard M. Nixon and Gov. William W. Scranton, wades deeper into the presidential primary battle today as Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, fortified with support from Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge's son, steps up the pace.

Rockefeller planned today to visit Monterey—where Goldwater had been Tuesday—for a round of appearances before continuing north to Santa Cruz, Santa Clara and San Francisco. Goldwater also planned to move northward, visiting Santa Barbara—where Rockefeller had been Tuesday—to mend any political fences the New Yorker may have toppled.

Goldwater revealed the neutrality statements he'd received from the former vice president and the Pennsylvania governor Wednesday. An aide said the Arizona senator had wired the undeclared Republican contenders earlier in the week, saying they had been represented here as aligned with his opponents.

Both Nixon and Scranton replied they are not out to stop either Rockefeller or Goldwater in the primary election next Tuesday.

There was, conversely, no such statement from Lodge. His son, George, appeared at a news conference early Wednesday to urge Lodge supporters to vote for Rockefeller, saying it was "the surest way to endorse Lodge in California."

Young Lodge said nomination of Goldwater by the GOP "would most likely set the party in decline from which it would atrophy."

The son of the ambassador to South Viet Nam said he believes Rockefeller, more closely than Goldwater, represents the views of "forward-looking" Republicanism enunciated Monday by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Earlier, Goldwater had declared that he is "the only serious candidate" in the California presidential primary and that he hates to think of what would happen to the dollar if Rockefeller became president.

Goldwater also said he'd have sent the U.S. Marines to turn on the water for Guantanamo Naval Base in Cuba when the Castro regime shut it off.

"Had I been the commanding officer of the base, I probably would have taken that action. I believe in protecting the American people first, and then worry about what happens afterward," he said.

Life in Arkansas

By J. C. TILLMAN Associated Press Writer

Mayor R. E. Eden of West Memphis had one of those "this isn't my day" experiences recently.

He had to go to Little Rock and a local pilot volunteered to fly him there. The trip was smooth, but on arrival over the city, the landing gear stuck and the plane had to circle the airport while the wheels were pumped down by hand.

Then at lunch, the air conditioner broke down and Eden had to sweat out 90-degree weather. To cap it all, when he and the pilot got back to the airport they found the radio had been left on and the battery was dead.

At Stuttgart a father attempted to learn something about his son's scholastic standing in class.

"Who," he began, "is the smartest one in your class?" "Mrs. Gibson," came the unhesitant reply.

In the animal oddities field—O.M. Booker of Waldo recently ended the wanderings of a bronzed grackle when he shot the bird. It was banded in Starling, Colo., June 18, 1955. The band was returned to the U.S. Department of Interior, which is studying bird habits.

And at Hot Springs, Raymon Ledwidge is still wondering how a small bird—probably a chickadee—followed his car around long enough to build a nest in it. He says he can understand a nest being found in a car that is parked in one place for several days, but his is driven to work every day.

He found the nest between the radiator and the grill. In it were two brown-speckled eggs, safe and sound.

V-President Vacancy Is Still There

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — That big hole at the top of the government—the empty vice presidency—is still there. Congress is making sounds about doing something and, as usual, it's all uncertain.

Equally important, perhaps more so, is the twin problem never yet settled by law: presidential disability. For instance: who decides the next in line should be president if the president refuses to admit he can't do his job?

If Congress does act this year—it may not be able to because the Southern filibuster on civil rights has everything gummed up—it will probably be in the form of a constitutional amendment.

Starting out, that needs a two-thirds vote by House and Senate. Next, three-fourths of the states' legislatures must approve. This could take several years.

Congress long ago tried to provide for the line of succession if the president died and there was no vice president. But it has never tackled the disability problem.

Here are some examples of what Congress has done to cover the situation if there's no vice president and the president dies:

By act of March 1, 1793, Congress provided for the Senate's president pro tempore (one of the senators) and the speaker of the House to succeed to the presidency in that order. That lasted 93 years.

On Jan. 21, 1886, Congress passed another act. This knocked out the 1793 law and said the line of succession should be through the Cabinet, starting with the secretary of state. That lasted 61 years.

On July 18, 1947, Congress changed the law again. Now the line of succession goes this way: Speaker of the House, the Senate's president pro tempore and then the Cabinet.

But eight times—when presidents died in office and were succeeded by their vice presidents—the country has been left without a vice president, as it is now. It so happened that none of the vice presidents who became president died in office.

The assassination of President John F. Kennedy and the succession to the presidency of Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson, leaving the No. 2 spot vacant again, has forced the country to look at the problem again.

In a nuclear age like this, when an enemy attack might within a few minutes remove a president and vice president, the problem looks vivid.

But there is that other problem of disability. Since there was no law on the subject, President Dwight D. Eisenhower, and President Kennedy arranged with their vice presidents for them to take over if the president became disabled.

But suppose a president is too disabled to know it. How does the vice president step in and what happens if a president can't carry out his duties but won't admit it?

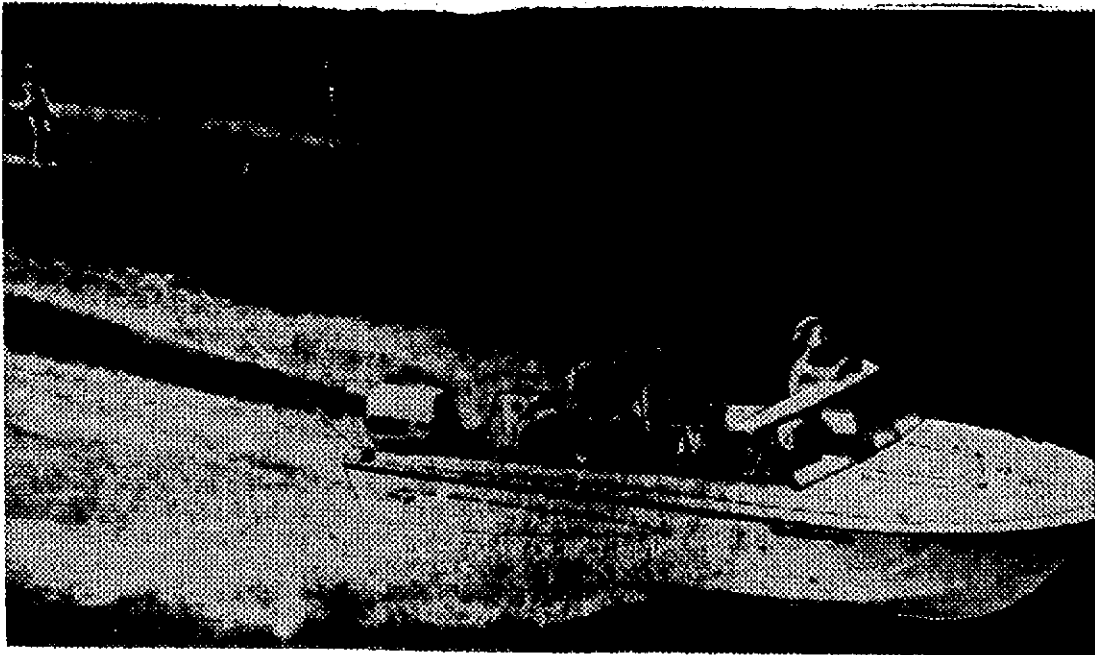

A subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee has been studying the problem for months and this week is expected to urge the full committee to approve this solution:

When there's no vice president, the president must nominate a vice president, but he can't take office unless approved by a majority of both houses. When a president says in writing he's too disabled to carry out his job, the vice president would become acting president until the president declared his disability ended.

If the president should not make known his disability, the vice president with the concurrence of a majority of the Cabinet could declare the president disabled and assume the powers and duties but not the office of the president.

If the president disputed the act of the vice president and a majority of his Cabinet, Congress would decide with a two-thirds vote of both houses for the vice president to continue as acting president. Otherwise, the president would resume his powers and duties.

But if this ever comes to a vote in House and Senate, amendments offered on the floor could change the solutions just outlined. So, as of now there is nothing definite either about the final form or the final action.

UNEASY LIES THE DEAD

The Story: Milo March, an insurance investigator, has been asked to find Thomas Rako, who has been missing for nearly seven years. If Rako is declared legally dead, a million dollars will have to be paid by the insurance firm.

IV

"You figure it out. Rako started out like a hundred other punk kids. He got his education in the reform schools of the country. He went to work for Johnny Clark. Within three years he was beating every rap we tried to pin on him, and within another year he was partners with Johnny Clark in the trucking business—or their wives were. Clark has a lot of hoods working him and most of them beat the raps against them, but not many ever go into business with him."

"I have a guess," I said. "I'm not a specialist on Johnny Clark, but I do know he has a lot of hoods working for him and some of them are big time. So my guess would be that first four years Rako worked for Clark he got something on him."

He looked at me shrewdly. "Just between us, that was my guess years ago. But how do you prove a thing like that?"

"Usually you don't. But let's assume that it's a good guess and then carry it a step farther. Rako is up before a Congressional committee and takes the Fifth about 100 times. He's bound to be cited for contempt and draw at least a year in jail. Plus the fact that they'll keep after him. He doesn't want to spend a year in the big house and Clark doesn't want him to talk. Clark could handle this easily, except for the fact that Rako has other things on him. And since Rako is smart, whatever he has is in a safe place and will be turned over to the authorities if anything happens to him. So he goes to Clark and makes a deal. If Clark will help him disappear and furnish him enough money, they'll both be safe. How does that sound?"

"It could make sense," Jameson said, "but can you prove it in 30 days?"

"I don't know, but I'm going to give it a try."

"A lot of men have been giving it a try."

"They were official and I'm not. I can do things they couldn't."

"Well, I wish you luck."

"There are a couple of things I'd still like to ask you," I said. "What about Mrs. Rako? She still in town?"

"She lives up in Cleveland Heights," he opened a drawer and rummaged through it until he found what he wanted. He copied something down on a piece of paper and shoved it across to me. "There's her address. I don't think you'll get much out of her. She's been pretty well worked over the last few years."

"Is the trucking company still in business?"

"Sure. The Rack Trucking Company. It does a lot of business here and throughout Ohio."

"Still the same owners?"

"Yes—Mrs. Rako and Mrs. Clark. Both swore it was their own money that went into the company and nobody could prove differently. They also claim that they get no extra business because Johnny Clark is the head of the Carrier Workers Union and nobody could prove that they did."

"Nice," I said. "You get any mug shots of Rako?"

"Sure. Lots of them, but they're 12 years old."

He reached for the phone. He told someone I'd be down to look at the pictures of Thomas Rako and hung up.

I followed his directions and ended up with a police technician. He had the mug shots ready for me. They showed a heavy-set, black-haired man who looked like a hundred other young thugs.

It was already noon. I stopped in at one of the hotels and had a couple of martinis and some lunch. Then I found a taxi and told the driver to take me to the address in Cleveland Heights.

When we arrived, I saw a fairly modern house that must have cost about 30 thousand. The door was opened by a very attractive woman, short with black hair, about 35 years old. "Yes?" she said.

"I'm looking for Mrs. Rako," I said.

"My name is Milo March. I represent the company that sold your husband his insurance policies. I'd like to talk to you for a few minutes."

She turned and went back into the house, leaving the door open so I could follow. She led the way into the living room. It was nicely, and expensively, furnished, but at the moment it was in a state of disorder. There were several empty glasses on the coffee table and the ashtrays were full.

"It's the maid's day off and I haven't had a chance to clean up," she said. It was an explanation, not an apology.

Harris Picked to Oppose Wilkinson
OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma Democrats Tuesday night tapped Fred Harris, a 33-year-old attorney, as their man to tackle the pride of the Republicans — ex - football coach Bud Wilkinson — for the U.S. Senate.

Harris swamped incumbent Sen. J. Howard Edmondson, whose meteoric rise in politics was cut short by sudden and overwhelming defeat.

Even more surprising was the victory of under-aged Jed Johnson over 6th District Rep. Victor Wickersham, an 18-year veteran of the lower chamber. The minimum age for a congressman is 25—and Johnson won't be that old until December.

Harris received 270,928 votes to 172,785 for Edmondson with all but a handful of the state's 3,044 precincts still out.

Johnson, who just barely won a runoff spot against Wickersham after the May 5 primary, had 42,185 votes to 40,973 for Wickersham with all precincts reported.

Harris' stunning triumph was the climax to a bitter campaign. Wilkinson, the Republican glamour candidate who turned to politics from a career as Oklahoma football coach, commented after Harris' victory that he hopes for a fall campaign based on issues rather than personalities.

Harris, a state senator and Lawton attorney, ran 5th in a field of 12 for the Democratic nomination for governor in 1962.

Edmondson's defeat in the Senate race was almost as great as his victory when he was elected governor in 1958. He resigned about a week before his term was to expire to accept a two-year appointment to the Senate after the death of Robert S. Kerr.

It is the final two years of Kerr's term which is involved in the current campaign.

Harris carried 74 of Oklahoma's 77 counties, missing out by only eight votes in Edmondson's home county, Muskogee,

How to Avoid Slip Up When Launching

It doesn't take a bottle of champagne to launch your outboard. Better use is made of a keen sense of direction and a guide standing at the rear of the trailer to call out instructions. Here's how to do it:

1. Back slowly at a right angle to the launching site. Remember that when you want the rear of the trailer to turn one direction, steer your car the opposite way.

2. If the site is natural or unimproved, pick a sloping spot hard enough to give your tires a lot of traction.

3. When you are a few feet from the water's edge, remove the rear-tie-downs from the boat. Tilt the motor up and unlock the bow winch, but keep the boat snubbed tight.

4. Back again until the trailer wheels are an inch or two in the water. Set the hand brake and put the car in gear, ignition off. Now give the boat a firm push from the trailer.

Don't be one of those landlocked sailors who scuttle their boat before they get it to water. Be sure your boat, trailer, and car are matched and that you have an adequate well-designed hitch.

Asks Ruling on Housing Levy

Harris won the endorsement of Sen. Kerr's widow. The Kerr Senate staff formed the core of his campaign organization.

Crossett in Approval of Bond Issue

CROSSETT, Ark. (AP)—Crossett voters gave routine 729-23 approval Tuesday to a $9.3 million Act 9 bond issue to finance expansion of manufacturing operations of the Georgia Pacific Corp.

The firm plans to build six new plants costing $10.8 million. It has $1.5 million left from an earlier Act 9 bond issue.

Act 9 bonds are secured only by rental revenue from the plants they construct. No general tax is authorized to support them.

Georgia Pacific plans to build a southern pine plywood plant costing $4.7 million, a grocery bag plant costing $750,000, a milk carton plant costing $2.1 million, a polyethylene extrusion plant costing $2.4 million, an industrial towel plant costing $700,000 and a rosin plant costing $150,000.

Total employment in the six plants is estimated at 600. The net job gain to Crossett will be less than that, however, because Georgia Pacific plans to curtail its lumber mill operation when the plywood plant is opened.

Lynch Him, Shouts New York Mob

By RICHARD F. WHALEN
NEW YORK (AP) — "Lynch him. Kill him," shouted a mob of whites outside a bar where a Negro was being questioned about the holdup murder of a white bartender.

The victim was the third white man attacked by Negroes near the western edge of Harlem in five days.

Police had to call in reinforcements Tuesday night to push through the mob to a patrol car with the Negro. They said early today that the man, Alonzo Cook, 20, of Harlem, had admitted the shooting.

He was booked on a charge of homicide.

Police said the bartender, Gerald Esmond, 55, was talking to a lone customer when the gunman entered and said, "Give me your money."

"Are you kidding?" Esmond asked, and was shot twice. The gunman grabbed $40 from the cash register and fled, pursued by the customer.

Police arrested Cook after they found him in bushes in a church yard.

Esmond, married and the father of one, was well-known in the Vinegar Hill section of Manhattan's upper West Side, a predominantly white neighborhood. A crowd gathered at the bar at 3299 Broadway and the noisiest rattled and pounded on the door, shouting for a lynching.

Last Friday night, L. Carroll Adams, 56, a professor of physical education at Columbia University, was attacked and robbed of $70 by about 20 teenage Negroes.

Adams was attacked at 120th Street and Riverside Drive after he left a Peace Corps meeting. Police captured six of the Negroes, aged 13 to 16.

The next day Prof. John Hazard, 55, of Columbia Law School was attacked by five Negro teenagers at Morningside Drive and 113th Street. They knocked him to the ground, took his watch and wallet containing about $30 and fled.

Water Skiing Is Fun for Everyone

Water skiing has come a long way since that day some tied a surfboard to a motorboat and yelled: "Let 'er rip!"

Boats have become faster, motors more powerful, and the surfboard has been traded for a pair of skis. The skier now shouts "Hit it," when he is ready to go.

Any good swimmer can enjoy water skiing. The sport is easy to learn and does not require a large amount of athletic ability.

Because skiing should never be done in less than five feet of water, a novice swimmer should improve his swimming before trying on skis. A flotation device is no substitute for swimming ability.

Occasionally a skier through ignorance or inexperience will do things which irritate and anger others using the same waters. "Cowboys" who cut too close to swimmers and fishermen, send heavy waves against canoes, and behave as if they were the only ones in the water have been responsible for restrictions placed on the sport in many areas.

Such disregard of ordinary common sense and courtesy is condemned by responsible water skiers. They would like to see these "Cowboys" enroll in any of the hundreds of water ski clubs throughout the country, where they could learn the finer points of the sport.

Water skiers take plenty of spills, and water isn't very soft when you hit it at high speed. As in other sports, special equipment has been designed for protection.

Skiers should not ski without

Nautical look radiates from these Devonshire - designed sleek stretch pants of wool and Enka nylon — that defies wrinkles and never sags out of shape.

a flotation device. The National Safety Council recommends a vest or jacket as it will keep the skier's head out of the water in case the impact leaves him breathless. Such jackets can be obtained which meet Coast Guard specifications, so can be used as boat equipment as well as for water skiing.

There should be an extra person in the boat to act as an observer. Skier, observer and operator should know all the signals to start, adjust speed, change direction, stop, and the "I am OK" sign following a fall.

The boat operator should drive the craft according to the skier's ability. Sharp turns should be avoided.

Approach a fallen skier with the skier on the driver's side of the boat for maximum visibility. Return to a fallen skier quickly, but don't "show boat" by spinning the craft instead of turning. Reduce speed to idle as you near the skier.

Hands clasped victoriously over the head after falling tell those in the boat that all is well.

When the skier is ready to start, he should not yell "Hit it" until the rope is tight and the ski tips are up. No part of the body should be put through the bridge. Don't wrap the rope around any part of the body.

Many skiing clubs require that their members fly a special flag from the towing motorboat. This flag has a white background with a red diagonal bar flanked by two red water skis.

This flag warns other craft that the boat is engaged in water skiing and the Council approves its use. If the boat is stopped, other boaters know a skier has fallen or is just starting. It warns that the boat is trailing a towline up to 75 feet in length, so that other boaters will not come closer and foul their propellers.

A large part of water safety is common courtesy. It may save your boat—and your life.

Cook-out Meats Thing for Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The outdoor eating season gets underway this Memorial Day weekend with an abundance of cook-out meats being featured in supermarkets and neighborhood stores.

The traditional barbecue choices—steaks and broilers—are in the spotlight on meat market counters.

Due to the large number of cattle on farms being fattened for market, retailers have heavy supplies of beef to sell and prices have been reduced. Broilers will be in good supply and lower in price this summer.

Turkeys and hams are popular with the outdoor cook. Also available will be chopped meat patties—hamburgers, lambburgers, porkburgers and vealburgers—and frankfurters.

There's lots of variety at produce counters and the supplies of fruits are increasing. Best buys include asparagus, broccoli, celery, sweet corn, green onions, lettuce, potatoes, spinach, squash and tomatoes.

A sure sign of spring is the abundance of watermelons. Shoppers will also find bananas, lemons, oranges, rhubarb and strawberries.

Discover Lack of Proper Flag

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Luke Air Force Base had a traditional four-star flag for Gen. Maxwell Taylor's visit Tuesday, and Sharon Wynn has the nickname of "Betsy Ross."

Luke officials discovered Monday afternoon that they lacked the proper flag to greet the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. They called on Mrs. Wynn, who runs a clothing specialty shop.

She started working on it at 5 in the afternoon and finished the 18-by-26 inch flag at 7 a.m. Tuesday, after sewing through the night.

Discusses Possible River Route

MEMPHIS (AP) — Maj. Gen. Ellsworth I. Davis, president of the Mississippi River Commission, said Tuesday the problem of creating a 12-foot navigation channel from Baton Rouge to Memphis is basically stabilization of the Mississippi River.

"It's a matter of deepening shallow stretches in between longer areas of deep water," Davis said at a commission hearing in Memphis.

"We need to create a channel which at low water would be narrow enough so we could get the maximum depth."

Several Mid-South businessmen and development leaders stressed an urgent need for the 12-foot channel to alleviate the effect low water conditions have on the Mid-South economy.

Herbert S. Esch, chairman of the Memphis and West Memphis Area Development Committee, pointed out that a 12-foot channel this past winter would have "assured the uninterrupted movement of river traffic, not only by barge tows, but by ocean-going vessels."

At present, a 12-foot channel exists to about 50 miles north of Natchez, Miss. Davis has said the channel will be complete to Cairo, Ill., by 1970, if funds are allocated.

Arkansan Is Unknown But Respected

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Arkansan virtually unknown to the public but highly respected in the gas and oil industry helps regulate faces compulsory retirement in three years. And the government can't find anyone to replace him.

He is Tell T. White, 67, chief petroleum and gas engineer for the Securities and Exchange Commission, a native of Pocatonton, Ark.

A commission spokesman said the agency has abandoned its attempt to find one man with an expert knowledge of oil and gas production and prospecting, plus oil and gas law, plus oil and gas securities.

It is raining two men to take White's job.

White's position is unusual in another way. He possesses oil and gas information that would be of tremendous value to private oil firms.

A former commission employee says of White, "He knows more about oil and gas production in the United States than any other one man. If there is a producing well anywhere in the country, you can bet that Tell has got plotted on a map somewhere."

White received a distinguished alumnus award two years ago from the University of Arkansas. The citation read at the ceremony said White has saved "the government and private investors many millions of dollars."

White is responsible for checking the production, reserves and profit prospects of legitimate oil and gas companies, as well as exposing fraudulent promoters who try to sell stocks on worthless property.

He amazes associates by closely estimating the amount of oil under land he has never seen.

The owner of an oil field estimated in a recent case that his reserves were 20 million barrels. He was miffed when White requested that the estimate be scaled down to about six million. The owner hired a company to run tests and make an appraisal.

White said later, "There was only about five per cent differ-

Rockefeller Sees Victory in California

By JACK BELL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller apparently believes he has welded a responsibility key that will unlock the doors to victory in California's vital Republican presidential primary next Tuesday.

The New York governor has tossed overboard the underdog role he played expertly in winning the May 15 Oregon primary. In that contest he damaged beyond practical repair the potential candidacy of U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge.

Rockefeller now is reported highly confident he can handily defeat Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., in next week's voting and thus blight the Arizona conservative's burgeoning drive for the 655 convention votes needed for the presidential nomination.

Rockefeller's public prediction that if he wins California's 86 votes in Tuesday's balloting he will have 400 convention votes on the first ballot is privately chalked up in his own camp as a "booboo."

Even if he can field all of New York's 92 votes—of which there is some doubt—Oregon's 18 and California's 86 would give him just 196. He probably would go over the 200 mark but would still be a distant second to Goldwater on the first countdown at the San Francisco meeting.

But his victory in Oregon and his confidence that he can win in California have restored the governor's obviously faltering faith—which he never conceded publicly—that he could win the nomination for himself.

Nobody around him was willing to admit it aloud, but until Oregon came along and California began to look good, the Rockefeller operation was regarded by the political pros as little more than a desperate effort to stop Goldwater.

The pros are not ready quite yet to go along, but Rockefeller's people are talking optimistically of getting the nomination for their candidate. They are bearing down on the point that the governor really believes he can beat President Johnson in November. They are suggesting that Goldwater and some other potential nominees have no such faith in their prowess.

Rockefeller told a Young Republican audience in the swank Beverly Hilton Hotel Tuesday night that the issue in his head-on battle with Goldwater is "whether the Republican party is going to move forward in the mainstream of public life or whether it will pull off into a small eddy, pulled there by a small minority in the party."

Rockefeller got polite but not exactly enthusiastic applause when he said that Goldwater—"my competitor or whatever you call him"—does not stand within the framework of Republican responsibility as defined by (former) President Eisenhower.

Trouble is, twice-divorced Jane has three growing children to care for, and they grow restless when she's gone, especially in the summer. So she tries to arrange engagements close to home or in places the kids can go along.

The harvest for a week's trilling on the four-sided stage can be anywhere from $10,000 to $20,000. Jane holds the gross record at Melodyland and perhaps in summer musicals anywhere: $87,000 a week in "The

Civil War Torpedo Is Detonated

GREENVILLE, Miss. (AP)—A century-old experimental torpedo—nudged from its Civil War grave in the old Mississippi River channel near Vicksburg—has been detonated.

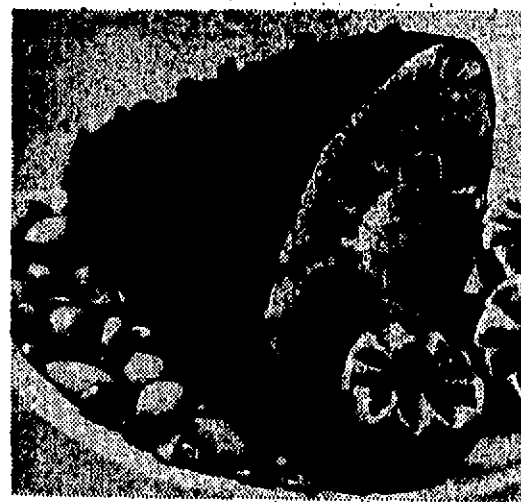

Demolition experts blasted the cigar-shaped Union navy torpedo Tuesday at Greenville Air Force Base.

The torpedo was discovered Sunday by William W. Felker of Greenville, while fishing near Vicksburg. Felker said he drove home "with the thing rolling around in the back of my car."

A. W. Banton, resident historian of the Vicksburg National Military Park, said a check with the Smithsonian Institution indicated the torpedo was the first such of Civil War vintage ever discovered.

U.S. Vietnam Plan Has Withered

An AP News Analysis
By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is unlikely to admit it, but it seems apparent the plan to wind up the major part of the U.S. military effort in South Viet Nam by the end of 1965 has quietly withered away.

When officials are reminded of that plan, announced last October, they reply: "But there have been two coups in Saigon since then."

What they mean is that the effort against the Communist insurgents has been set back by confusion and disorganization stemming from two changes in the South Vietnamese government. These were the overthrow of the Diem regime by a military junta in November and the overthrow of the junta by another military group in January.

The belief is that the 15,500 U.S. military men in South Viet Nam will not be reduced appreciably, if at all, this year, and perhaps not to any great extent next year.

New plans to double the number of Vietnamese pilots and to boost the Vietnamese ground forces by some 50,000 men will entail increased U.S. training responsibilities that will carry over at least into 1965.

Some U.S. advisers will return home as their tasks are finished—as the Vietnamese get the hang of doing certain things for themselves.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara says repeatedly it will be a long, hard struggle before the Communists are overcome in Viet Nam.

The latest indication that the end-of-1965 target date has been shelved came Tuesday after McNamara testified in secret before the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., the committee chairman, said McNamara "was not as optimistic on his timetable as he had been before."

Actually, McNamara for some time has avoided any direct answer to reporters' questions about whether the 1965 objective still holds.

Some officials contend there never was a flat commitment to pull out the bulk of U.S. military men by the end of next year.

They say it was an objective predicated on the ability of the South Vietnamese to stand on their own feet and to control most of their country, and on political stability in Viet Nam.

These officials also note that the statement setting the 1965 target date specified that some U.S. trainers probably would have to stay on beyond that time.

That statement was issued by the White House on Oct. 2 after McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, reported to President John F. Kennedy on an on-the-spot check.

McNamara and Taylor had

Johnson Has Many Techniques

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP)—Add the barebones techniques to President Johnson's long list of ways of getting things done.

It served to get the foreign aid bill through the House Foreign Affairs Committee, and it may well get the bill all the way through Congress virtually untouched.

For the first time since the foreign aid program started back in the days after World War II, the Foreign Affairs Committee did not cut even one cent from the total.

Not only that, it added an extra $125 million to jack up the war effort in Viet Nam, making a total of about $3.5 billion for economic aid and military assistance to countries around the world.

A final routine vote by the committee on a clean copy of the bill is expected today to gone to Saigon at that time to assess possible damage to the anti-Communist cause growing out of repression of the Buddhists by the regime of President Ngo Dinh Diem.

The White House statement said in part:

"Secretary McNamara and Gen. Taylor reported their judgment that the major part of the United States military task can be completed by the end of 1965 although there may be a continuing requirement for a limited number of United States training personnel."

At the same time, it was announced that 1,000 American military men would be withdrawn by the end of 1963.

This was done, even though a military junta unhorsed Diem in the meantime, and the Communists capitalized on the turmoil.

President Johnson sent McNamara and Taylor back to Saigon just before Christmas. Returning, the defense secretary said he had reviewed Vietnamese and American plans for operations in 1964. "We have every reason to believe they will be successful," McNamara stated.

But he ignored a question about the 1965 target, and there was speculation the October plan had been ditched.

In January, McNamara appeared before a House committee behind closed doors. A censored version of his testimony put him on record as saying the United States still hopes to withdraw most of its troops from Viet Nam by the end of 1965.

Within a couple of days of McNamara's testimony, a second coup was staged in South Viet Nam. Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh seized power and became the Saigon government's strong man.

Again the Communists struck, and in March an alarmed Johnson administration sent McNamara back to Saigon to see what needed to be done.

It was this March trip that led to a big spurt in U.S. aid, including a major increase in the size of the Vietnamese regular and para-military forces.

Little was heard of the end-of-1965 target after that.

The subject was raised at an April 24 news conference, and McNamara said: "I don't want to predict what the totals (of American servicemen in Viet Nam) will be at the end of this year or at the end of 1965."

Congress Will Not Yield Privileges

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press news Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is distinguished by its grim determination to yield none of its privileges. It has two rules of conduct: One for itself and a different one for other people.

It is supposed to be the symbol of democratic government, but for years some of its members, mostly liberal senators, have urged Congress to do to itself what it requires others to do.

Now it's being urged anew, as a result of the Bobby Baker case—but once again, embarrassed though it is, it will probably do nothing. This is what is meant:

Congress years ago passed a law, and later tightened and broadened it, to prevent conflict of interest among employees of the executive branch of government. Conflict of interest means mixing a government job with personal gain.

For example: Men appointed by the president to high position are required to get rid of stock they hold in companies dealing with the government. But this does not apply to members of Congress or its employees.

Liberal senators have proposed Congress pass similar legislation on itself, its own code of ethics to prevent conflict of interest. Congress has ignored them.

But from last November until March the Senate Rules Committee investigated the financial doings of Baker who, as secretary of the Democratic majority in the Senate, earned $19,600 a year.

The investigation disclosed that while he held this job he had accumulated a business fortune of about $2 million. He was called to testify but refused to.

While the full Senate authorized the committee to examine the financial or business interests or activities of any Senate employee, it did not authorize the investigation of any senator who might have been involved with Baker.

Baker was a fantastic wheeler and dealer. A report prepared by the committee staff last week, while attaching no criminal blame to him, accused him of "gross improprieties" in getting his job mixed up with private business.

But the report was harsh on the Senate, saying: "No amount of sophistry can relieve the Senate of the public criticism now directed against it."

The report suggested that to protect its name the Senate should write a code of ethics for itself. And it proposed the Senate and its employees be compelled to disclose publicly their outside income and its sources.

The Senate Republican leader, Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, opposed this suggestion as he had similar ones in the past. He said, "I have never been in favor of making 'class b' citizens out of senators."

Another proposal in the committee report ran into broad opposition in the Senate: This would forbid a senator to intercede with any government agency on behalf of a corporation doing business with the government.

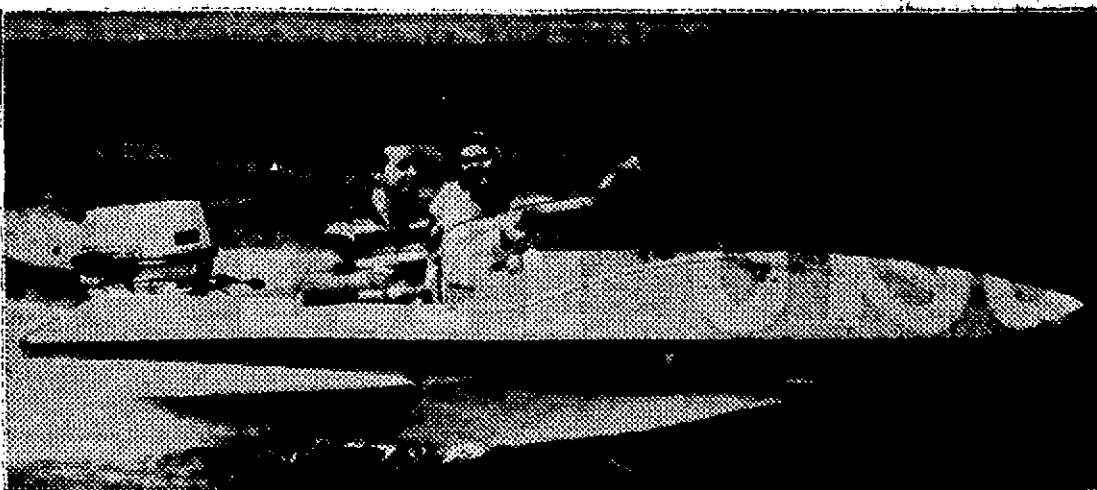

In a place like the Senate, where each member has tremendous power and is jealous of it, there is enormous resistance to changing any rules or diminishing any privileges. This is truly a club, and a very exclusive one.

The disclosures in the Baker case—the spectacle of this nimble young man, so close to many senators, becoming a millionaire while working for the Senate—was a shock to all 100 members.

It raises a natural question: If all this could happen with just one young man, what else is going on there? If the senators voted to disclose their outside income, the public would have both a check and an insight.

But the Senate, shocked though it is, has been through other unpleasant moments in its long history and will probably do nothing as it sighs and waits for this storm to pass away, thinking, perhaps, in time all things pass away.

Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor from 1933 to 1945, was the first U.S. woman Cabinet member.

DOWN TO THE SEA OR LAKE, WILL BE the rallying cry of many Americans this summer as they take to the water in larger numbers than ever. And what could be more fun than cruising along with a pretty girl? Here, a 40 hp. motor provides the thrust for a Glaspar boat.

U.S. Boaters Flock 'Down to the Sea' in Summer

One of the many pleasures of outboarding is the number of things that you can do. If you want to water ski, you can. Do you want to skin dive? An outboard makes a good base of operations. Fishing is easy in the most protected waters of the ocean. You name it; you can do it outboarding.

A facet of outboarding that is getting more and more attention, is the outboard cruise.

An outboard cruise can be as simple or as detailed as you wish. A few boats can make the cruise or, as it is done in some places, hundreds of boats. Every member of the family can participate. Cost can be kept well below a similar auto trip, or you can live like a king or an admiral.

A few points to remember in getting the cruise ready are offered by the Johnson Motors News Bureau.

First, learn the conditions of the waterway you will be following. The major oil companies put out considerable information in the way of maps and folders on the major water routes. These will include places to get supplies, points of interest and water conditions. Both the Coast Guard and the Corps of Engineers publish detailed maps of navigable waters. These are inexpensive and of great help to all boaters. Your local postoffice will be able to give you the address of the nearest regional office of these two departments.

It is a good idea to check the state conservation department. They also provide maps and up-to-date information on facilities. Your marine dealer can help you too.

With your route and destination set, compute the total distance to travel and break it down into daily runs. End each day's run where you can obtain fuel, oil, food, water, ice and other necessities as well as sleeping accommodations or camping areas.

If you go with more than one boat there should be some method of signalling to each other so that you know when the others are going to shore, stopping or changing directions. Radio would be fine but expensive. Shouting isn't always possible. The easiest method is by hand signals.

Wants Voters to Turn Down Spa Gambling

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — One of Arkansas' leading Baptist clergymen has called on Arkansas voters to turn down the proposed constitutional amendment to legalize gambling at Hot Springs.

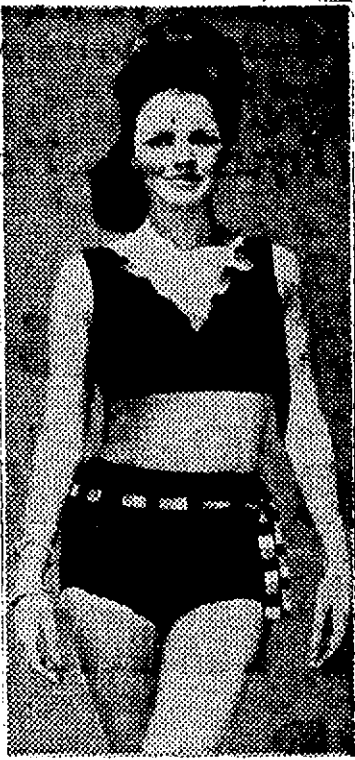

Dr. Irwin McDonald, editor of the Arkansas Baptist News magazine and president of the Greater Little Rock Ministerial Association, said today that gambling is inherently evil and that "you can not make it right just by passing a law to make it legal."

McDonald was interviewed after the ministerial association which he heads passed a resolution Monday opposing the legalization of gambling.

McDonald said he was "greatly encouraged by the governor's success in closing and keeping closed the Hot Springs casinos."

"We'd like him to add enforcement of the state law prohibiting mixed drinks in public places," McDonald said. Mixed drinks are sold openly in Hot Springs in violation of state law.

"I'd like to call on the people of Arkansas to oppose the cur-

Atlanta New Target of High Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today directed the U.S. District Court in Atlanta to make a new examination of that city's latest plan for racial desegregation of its public schools.

The high court ordered this step after hearing argument by counsel for Negroes that Atlanta's Grade-A-Year desegregation plan was invalid.

The Supreme Court, in an unsigned order, said that the Atlanta Board of Education, on April 8, had adopted a "new formal resolution" on assignment of pupils and this plan should be appraised by the lower court "in a proper evidentiary hearing."

The Atlanta Board of Education acted after arguments were heard before the Supreme Court on March 31.

In the arguments, counsel for Negroes said Atlanta began desegregation in the fall of 1961 with the 11th and 12th grades. The plan then called for the addition of another grade each year, working downward, with all 12 grades desegregated in 1971.

Today's Supreme Court order noted that "it appears that since the argument the Atlanta Board of Education on April 8 adopted and promulgated a new formal resolution stating the present policy of the board and the factor effort to change our constitution to legalize casino gambling," McDonald said.

Steelmakers Discussing Changeovers

By SAM DAWSON

AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—American steelmasters, converging on New York City for a meeting, are discussing changeovers on the fast change-over to new techniques now under way. Some of the smaller companies are claiming credit for leading the move to catch up with steelmakers abroad.

Beyond that, delegates to the American Iron & Steel Institute meeting are being told to "anticipate major changes in metallurgical education and laboratory research" with whole new industries to "merge out of the new scientific developments."

The here-and-now changes are coming fast, if belatedly. Continuous casting units are the latest, touted as saving from $3 to $12 a ton by skipping steps in the older process. This trend follows closely on the switch to oxygen furnaces, which can cut $2 to $8 a ton from costs of production from the standard open hearths.

Continuous casting was first used in the European Common Market, Japan and Russia. Recently it was taken up here by some small steel companies. And now many of the biggest concerns are building or planning to build continuous casting units. These bypass the ingot mold, stripping, soaking pit, and blooming mill, to convert molten metal into semifinished steel in one operation.

U.S. Steel will have a unit in operation in about two years at Gary, Ind. National Steel will have one at Weirton, W. Va., and Armco Steel at Butler, Pa. Bethlehem's pilot model will soon be in operation. Republic is building oxygen furnace plants which could accommodate continuous casting units later. McLouth is experimenting with the process.

But some small companies have units already in operation: Roanoke Steel, Roblin Steel, Connors Steel division of H. K. Porter.

The reason seems to be that this is one innovation which the small firm, as well as the large, can afford.

Gang Ruins Non Union Houses

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—About 100 men, swinging clubs, axes, and sledgehammers, swept through eight houses in a non-union project near Independence Hall Monday, causing $15,000 damage.

Roy Fuiman, the developer, who made the damage estimate, said the gang had raced through in five minutes, breaking windows and frames, ripping out railings and rainspouts, and chopping holes in ceilings and walls.

Six men were hurt while trying to flee.

Fuiman told police he had been warned last weekend there would be trouble.

Police Lt. Michael Levin of the labor squad said members of the AFL-CIO Building Trades Council had picketed the project last March.

Suggests Burning Jungle Foliage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater says low-yield atomic weapons could be used to burn jungle foliage and expose Communist supply lines along South Viet Nam's border.

The Arizona senator was asked Sunday on the ABC radio and television program "Issues and Answers" how jungle trails which can't be spotted from the air should be handled in the U.S.-supported war.

In the interview Goldwater urged the bombing with conventional weapons of bridges, roads and railroads used to bring supplies from Red China and North Viet Nam into South Viet Nam unless the Communists halted the military shipments.

The senator also indicated he would favor bombing supply routes inside Red China. "You might have to," he said, or the war will drag on and on.

NLR Plans to Integrate Grade Schools

NORTH LITTLE ROCK (AP)

The North Little Rock School Board implemented its desegregation plan Tuesday night by assigning nine Negroes to three white elementary schools for the 1964-65 term.

All of the Negroes involved will be in either the first or second grades.

Five pupils—one first grader and four second graders were assigned to the Clendenin School. One second grader was assigned to the McRae School. Two second graders and one first grader were placed in the Riverside School.

The board announced the voluntary desegregation plan April 20. It was not threatened with court action.

The plan—calling for desegregation of the first and second grades—replaced a plan suspended in 1957 as a result of the Little Rock integration crisis. At that time the board planned desegregation at the high school level.

Supt. F. B. Wright said names of the Negro pupils would not be announced until after their parents are notified Friday.

Wright told the board last night that original requests from Negro parents asked for

You've Had Your Fair Share of Nostalgia If You Can Look Back and Remember When

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Memory is one thing in life that increases in value as you get older.

The more you have to remember the richer you are, and the longer you live the more worthwhile things you have to recall—if you've had any luck at all.

You've had your fair share of nostalgia if you can look back and remember when—Spinach was the vegetable bane of childhood, because parents said, "It's full of iron—and iron is good for you." The dentist was pleased if you brushed your teeth at night and morning. Even most rich people didn't bother to brush after every meal.

There was a difference between masculine and feminine realms of power. Mother was the expert on anything pertaining to the house, father was the unchallenged authority on such matters as baseball, politics and the tariff.

One of the secret diversions in high school English classes was looking up the naughty words in the works of William Shakespeare.

There was no greater thrill than getting to feed a carrot to one of the great gray horses that pulled the fire department's hook and ladder wagon.

If you were trusted to go outside and beat the dust from the blackboard erasers, all your envious schoolmates called you "Teacher's pet!"

Medicine, if it was to do you any real good, had to taste bad—and it usually was colored dark brown.

Golf and tennis were both regarded as sissy games played largely by well-to-do people who weren't physically up to the wear and tear of body contact sports.

U of A to Award Honorary Degrees

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)

The University of Arkansas will bestow honorary degrees during commencement exercises next Saturday on a Little Rock businessman and a New York Educator.

The degrees will go to William E. Darby, president of the National Old Line Insurance Co. and Dr. Charles E. Palm, dean of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University.

Hospitals were feared by most persons. They were regarded as places where you went to die rather than to get well.

Anybody who got his car up to more than 60 miles an hour was considered a reckless daredevil.

Teen-agers screamed almost as loudly over the singing of a beapole kid named Frank Sinatra as they do now over the music of England's four hairy Beatles.

People of 40 were thought of as old but still employable.

Only the very wealthy worried about the income tax. The working man who got a full week's paid vacation a year felt he was fortunate. And only sick people ever were put on diets.

Those were the days. Remember
